IRIS
THE POOR MAN'S ORCHID

LOCATION

The Weed Landscape Nursery is located on the Canyon Road six miles west of Portland and one mile east of Beaverton. We invite an inspection of stock at all times, and upon notice by phone from Portland—Main 9158—will be pleased to meet parties and show them over our grounds. From Portland the nursery may be reached via auto over the Canyon Road six miles from the center of the city.

The nursery is owned by Howard Evarts Weed, for many years a Landscape Architect of Chicago. The location was selected after ten years' investigation to find the ideal combination of soil and climatic conditions suitable for the growth of ornamental plants. A cordial invitation is extended to visitors at all times to inspect the wonderful variety of ornamental plants which we grow. We have the most extensive collection of Peonies in the west and the largest selection of Iris in the Northwest. Those who have not seen our collections of these two flowers can little realize their beauty. The Iris are at their best during the month of May and the Peonies during the first three weeks of June. Phloxes and other perennials make a fine showing later in the season, so one will be amply repaid for the time expended in a visit to the nursery at any season.

We specialize in landscape gardening. If you contemplate the planting of ornamental plants on your home grounds, Mr. Weed will be pleased to inspect your grounds and give an estimate of the cost of any improvements. Our general catalogue of ornamental plants will be sent upon request.

IRIS

Pallida dalmatica

The Iris is a flower now coming into great popularity. It is a far cry from the "Flags" of the old gardens to the lovely creations of the hybridists, with their graceful and elegant forms and rich colors. A visit to a modern Iris garden is a revelation to most people, even to the flower lovers. The Iris is the "Fleur de Lis" of France—the National Flower. In America we often call it "the poor man's orchid," because of its delicate nature and rich coloring.

The flowers are beautiful in form and wonderful in structure. In colors we have royal purple and gold, all shades of blue from delicate azure to deepest violet, cream and snowy-white, violet so dark as to be almost black, shades of fawn and brown, copper and bronze, crimson and rose, ruffled, bordered, penciled and splashed in marvelous designs.

Here on the Pacific Coast one can have Iris from December to July in continuous bloom. Most of them are of easy culture, requiring no special care either in planting, soil, or situation. They will stand more neglect than any other flower and can be planted at any season, altho the autumn months are best. They do best in sunshine and well drained soil. If given plenty of water before the flowering season, they will flower more perfectly, but after the flowers are gone it is best to keep the water from them in order that they may have a resting stage when growth is practically dormant.

Iris, like other flowers, are best selected when in bloom. But where this is not possible, and the selection be left to us, we will give particular attention to giving varieties to cover the longest season of bloom. The prices given herein are for so-called single crowns, but in most cases there are two or three strong crowns connected. Six plants of a variety are given for the price of five.

In describing an Iris, the upright petals are termed the "standards" and the bottom drooping petals are known as the "falls." This is further shortened in the description by the letter S. for standards and F. for falls.

THE WINTER BLOOMING IRIS

These remarkable Iris belong to the genus Unguicularis and are winter bloomers, the flowers often showing above an inch or more of snow. The plants have long grass foliage and are the most continuous bloomers of any Iris—the "cut and come again
